“Students, faculty, visiting scholars, researchers, and members of the general public are welcome to consult material in the Rare Books and Special Collections reading room in the Irving K. Barber Learning Centre.”

INTRODUCTION

Why visit the Special Collections, in the Irving K. Barber Learning Centre?

- First, the document that I was keen to browse and analyze was available at the Special Collections at UBC.
- Next, it is a rare document of notorious repute.
- Furthermore, this document that's been labelled over the last 200 years as a forgery is nevertheless still available in many if not most University libraries across the world.
- Finally, this document, along with some other renown books, such as the Holy Bible, seems to support the now prevalent belief that planet Earth, and indeed the entire Universe are a holographic simulation construct,

Many writers, mathematicians and physicists believe that we live in a holographic simulation. To mention just a few:

- <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ZgQ3NfyAG6c> - Prof. Leonard Susskind - The World As Hologram
- Michael Talbot, The Holographic Universe
https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Michael\_Talbot\_\(author\))
- David Bohm: The Holographic Brain In collaboration with Stanford University neuroscientist Karl H. Pribram, both were involved in the early development of the holonomic model of the functioning of the brain.
- https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Nick\_Bostrom

Bostrom's simulation argument posits that:

“The fraction of all people with our kind of experiences that are living in a simulation is very close to one.”

Some concrete examples are required here:

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Digital\_twin

“A digital twin is a digital model of an intended or actual real-world physical product, system, or process (a physical twin) that serves as a digital counterpart of it for purposes such as simulation, integration, testing, monitoring, and maintenance.[1][2][3] Digital twins are the result of continual improvement in modelling and engineering.

At this pivotal moment in history there is a military convergence of autonomy, robotics, biotechnology, AI, and neurotechnology to create a digital twin architecture that will forge “a virtual earthly domain”.

A number of advanced civilizations likely existed on Earth in Antediluvian times. The builders of the pyramids were among these. “Parallel with the Megalithic builders, were the advanced peoples that preceded all the now known peoples to history” according to Professor Hapgood. In his book: Maps of the Ancient Sea Kings, this civilization provided humanity with maps that feature advanced trigonometry, knowledge of longitude and latitude, while showing us continents humanity didn't discover till centuries later. These maps also reveal astounding climatic and land changes that had been only recently made public. The Piri Re'is Map of 1513 was the main subject of this book, but there is much more there: For instance, you'll see there is Antarctica, a green luscious land, without ice caps!

Would it then be surprising to find out that one or more of these advanced civilizations that had mapped out the entire Earth, had their own “Digital Twin” copies of Earth?

How else would the Holy Bible narrative be able to present so many now already proven events? But, God knew, you'd say! Well maybe God did know. But that has nothing to do with the Bible. The Bible is not about God. It's a story about Gods – Elohim - which had over the centuries been erroneously translated as a singular noun. The ancient Hebrew translates it as a plural: Elohim translates as high council, judges, governors, learned elders.

These Gods apparently colonized the Earth and genetically modified some or perhaps all inhabitants of the Earth at the time they arrived.

Is everything we've been told lies? Is our science co-opted and hybridized, and is Earth's history anachronistic?

That it is an ancestor-simulation is a logical conclusion since only one particular group can benefit from such a construct – socially, politically, financially, and scientifically.

At their disposal are archives of centuries, different eras and civilizations.

While magnetic and optical data storage devices rely on individual bits being stored as distinct magnetic or optical changes on the surface of the recording medium, holographic data storage records information throughout the volume of the medium and is capable of recording multiple images in the same area utilizing light at different angles. [1]https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Holographic\_data\_storage in https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/David\_Bohm

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/The\_Book\_of\_the\_Damned

To provide some stunning, concrete information that's well documented: Charles Fort reports in his Book of the Damned, 1919, Re: 1561 and 1752 - a sudden collapse of the cloaking field, in Nuremberg, revealed that a great black spear was seen in the sky; similarly, the appearance of an octagonal star appeared in the sky in 1752, the sky's holography also suffered a loss of power.

What Charles Fort recorded in his Book of the Damned, 1919, regarding a sudden appearance of seeming superstructure types of objects in the sky that replaced the ordinary occurrence of the sun, clouds, and weather phenomena is enough to know that the Earth is a captured planet. This evidence coming from 1561, and 1752 would be enough for many to conclude that we didn't need science fiction to realize that planet Earth was being manipulated, surveyed, prodded in every which way; politically controlled and dictated to, and frequently genocided, by a power that was not always scientifically competent, if it could experience a failure of their power supply in its cloaking field, and reveal to the human race that these powers were the Earth's rulers and controllers. It's like the inhabitants of Earth are a livestock living inside a corral.

IN CONCLUSION:

September 2, 2015 – became a significant date for me since my visit to the Rare Books and Special Collections, in the Irving K. Barber Learning Centre, at UBC had been like a lightning bolt that caused a revolution in my consciousness. I knew then what my volume II of my Novel in progress would be about. Not until November 2019 was I able to start writing it down.

Here is the story: It's called Per Me reges regnant written on January 22, 2020., posted only on my website: <https://holimed.ca>

Oxford, 1819

"Thank you for meeting with me again, Professor."

"What's on your mind, my' man?"

"In your Protocols, on page 23, in Per Me reges regnant. I quote: "It is through me that kings reign."..."God has endowed us with genius that may be equal to the task. Were genius in the opposite camp it would still struggle against us, but ... a newcomer is no match for an old-established settler; the struggle would be merciless between us, such a fight as the world has never yet seen."

"You add that... "all the wheels of the machinery of all States are in your hands, and that the engine of the machinery is Gold.. Further, you say that nations can't come to even the smallest of private agreements without you secretly having a hand in it..."

"Elementary, dear Percy. What exactly is your point?"

"I have a few questions, Professor. It's known that your Legion, or Tribe, or Hidden Hand, whatever you want to call it, it's known that you have bought The British Throne, the Vatican, and you control the finances of the western world. Since the House of Normandy, William the Conqueror, in 1027, your "King" has sat on the British Throne; the whole of Europe is yours, except for Russia. The far east, and China play no part as yet. America, is your hidden, secret proxy corporation. The French Throne you destroyed in your instigated "French Revolution". - So you're sitting pretty.

But what if the eastern empires - perhaps a couple of centuries down the road - what if they end up more powerful than you when they join forces against your oppression?
You underestimate the genius of the Persian empire, or that of ancient China! Many of your tribes come from Russia, but you surely know that not all of them are on your side!"

"Stop boring me, my man, what are you driving at?"

"It's this! If it looks like you are losing against the eastern powers, will you take down the whole world? Like you did Atlantis? By water or fire, you shall again conquer all... it is said in ancient, secret books..."

"You are a visionary, dear Percy, an idealist of the highest order. How foolish to think that we'd do something as radical as we did against Atlantis. We take down rascally kingdoms in much smaller, natural catastrophes before they reach their full potential. You ought to study more to find the whole story. But when you do, what will you do with it? Again, as you already know, none of your foolish ruminations will see the light of day!

And don't forget, our Tribe likes to rewrite history...
Good day, Percy!"

Dresden 1829

"This was what dear Frederick witnessed. He was literally staring at them with his mouth hanging open; couldn't help himself he said. The exchange was polite yet fierce. Both speakers were apparently loud enough to bring all to their windows to hear."

"So the poet knew all that! I had no idea his research into the occult literature had progressed that far! Though, when you read Prometheus Unbound in view of this exchange, you'll see it's more like 'Prometheus Unleashed'! It's all there - between the lines. It's nothing like the playful original of Aesculapius, wouldn't you say, Stauber?"

"Yes. Nothing playful in Shelley's version. You see him struggle against an infinitely mighty enemy and the protagonist knows that he has already lost against this force..."

"Stauber, you never mentioned that these meetings had all been prearranged by the poet; he obviously wanted witnesses. And the professor was in agreement with that."

"Well, when you see the last account, which is what I witnessed, you'll know this last meeting was a different story. A chance meeting."

"Did you bring it. Stauber?"

"Sorry, Countess, I never travel with more than one document, in the event that I'm captured, physically accosted, or arrested. You understand that precautions need to be taken."

"Of course, dear friend, you are entirely right.
So how soon can we travel to Hamburg to meet with Hans's mother?"

"Frau Anderson suggested to wait till the end of the month before we travel. She's an interesting lady, totally unlike somebody's elderly mother. But then Hans is an unusually gifted man. Oh, I so hope that he's still alive!"
